I. Your relationship with us

The information on this website is for general information purposes and does not constitute legal advice. We do not warrant or otherwise guarantee the accuracy of any statement on this website. Should you contact us, please do not provide any confidential, privileged or otherwise sensitive information until we have conducted a full conflicts check and have agreed to accept you as a client. Every legal matter must be considered based on the applicable specific facts and law. Results may therefore vary depending on facts. Therefore, you should not rely on any information contained on this website; you should retain counsel of your choice to advise you on any matter. No attorney client relationship is created until required formalities have been completed. Information regarding that process is available by contacting mbutler@gashibutlerlaw.com.

II. Security and communicating with us

Emails or other electronic or telephonic communications are never entirely secure as is widely known. There are risks associated with the use of electronic and telephonic devices, including third party interceptions of emails and text transmissions. We cannot control the transmission methods employed by service providers and assume no liability for the security of transmissions. If you have special concerns regarding communications and how we should communicate, you should discuss those with us.
